December 16, 2019 — Crain's New York Business, which provides insights and analysis on how to navigate the city's complex business and political landscape, released the list in its Dec. 16 issue.

Tabatabai was among 100 New Yorkers selected for inclusion in the annual list, which honors "dedicated, gifted and determined female lawyers" in the New York City metro area.

The publication noted that the women were "fierce in their commitment to public service and pro bono causes" and balanced "distinguished careers, family, and philanthropic activities."

Tabatabai was recognized for her excellence in cross-border disputes -- where she represents domestic and international clients in high-stakes cases -- and commitment to providing quality pro bono legal services.
